HOW JSSA MAY USE AND SHARE YOUR INFORMATION FOR PAYMENT, TREATMENT, AND HEALTH CARE OPERATIONS

JSSA may use and disclose personal and identifiable health information about you for a variety of purposes. All of the types of uses and disclosures of information are described below, but not every use or disclosure in a category is listed.

- Required Disclosures: JSSA is required to disclose health information about you to the Secretary of Health and Human Services, upon request, to determine our compliance with HIPAA and to you, in accordance with your right to access and right to receive an accounting of disclosures, as described above.
- Treatment: JSSA may use and share your personal information with health care providers for coordination and management of your care. Providers include: physicians, hospitals, and other caregivers who provide services to you. For example, we may discuss your medications or test results with your physician. For mental health (psychotherapy) services only, JSSA will obtain your written consent and/or authorization as specified in Maryland, D.C., or Virginia state laws to disclose your personal health information for treatment.
- Payment: JSSA may use and disclose health information about you to bill for our services and to collect payment from you or your insurance company. For example, we may need to give a payor information about your current medical condition so that it will pay us for services that we have furnished you. We may also need to inform your payer of the prescribed treatment that you are going to receive in order to obtain prior approval or to determine whether the service is covered.

- Health Care Operations: JSSA may use and disclose information about you for the general operation of our business. For example, we sometimes arrange for accreditation organizations, auditors, or other consultants to review our facilities, evaluate our operations, and tell us how to improve our services. We may use and disclose your health information to review the quality of services provided to you.
- Public Policy Uses and Disclosures: There are a number of public policy reasons why JSSA may disclose information about you, which are described below.

JSSA may disclose health information about you when we are required to do so by federal, state, or local law.

JSSA may disclose protected health information about you in connection with certain public health reporting activities. For instance, we may disclose such information to a public health authority (or an official of a foreign government agency that is acting in collaboration with a public health authority) that is authorized to collect or receive protected health information for the purpose of preventing or controlling disease, injury, or disability. Public health authorities include state health departments, the Center for Disease Control, the Food and Drug Administration, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and the Environmental Protection Agency, to name a few. We also may disclose an individual's health information to a person who may have been exposed to a communicable disease.

Finally, we may release health information to an employer who has asked us to evaluate you in connection with medical surveillance of its workplace or whether you have a work-related illness or injury.

We may disclose protected health information to a person subject to the Food and Drug Administration's power for the following activities: to report adverse events, product defects or problems, or biological product deviations; to track products; to enable product recalls, repairs or replacements; or to conduct post marketing surveillance.

JSSA also is permitted to disclose protected health information to a public health authority or other government authority authorized by law to receive reports of child abuse or neglect. We may disclose protected health information where we reasonably believe an adult patient/client is a victim of abuse, neglect, or domestic violence and the individual authorizes the disclosure or it is required or authorized by law.

JSSA may disclose health information about you in connection with certain health oversight activities of licensing and other health oversight agencies which are authorized by law. Health oversight activities include audit, investigation, inspection, licensure, or disciplinary actions, and civil, criminal, or administrative proceedings or actions or any other activity necessary for the oversight of (1) the health care system, (2) governmental benefit programs for which health information is relevant to determining beneficiary eligibility, (3) entities subject to governmental regulatory programs for which health information is necessary for determining compliance with program standards, or (4) entities subject to civil rights laws for which health information is necessary for determining compliance.

JSSA may disclose your health information as required by law, including in response to a warrant, subpoena, or other order of a court or administrative hearing body, or to assist law enforcement to identify or locate a suspect, fugitive, material witness, or missing person. Disclosures for law enforcement purposes also permit us to make disclosures to provide evidence of criminal conduct that occurred on JSSA property, about a crime when responding to a medical emergency, about victims of crimes, and about the death of an individual, among others.

JSSA may disclose your protected health information for legal or administrative proceedings. We may release such information upon order of a court or administrative tribunal. We also may release protected health information in the absence of such an order and in response to a discovery or other lawful request, if efforts have been made to notify you or secure a protective order.

If you are an inmate, we may release protected health information about you to a correctional institution where you are incarcerated or to law enforcement officials in certain situations such as where the information is necessary for your treatment, health, or safety or the health and safety of others.

JSSA may release a patient's health information to (1) a coroner or medical examiner to identify a deceased person, determine the cause of death, or perform other duties authorized by law, and (2) funeral directors. We also may release personal health information to organ procurement organizations, transplant centers, and eye or tissue banks, if you are an organ donor.

JSSA may release your health information to workers' compensation or similar programs, which provide benefits for work-related injuries or illnesses without regard to fault.

Health information about you may be disclosed when necessary to prevent a serious threat to your health and safety or the health and safety of others or to apprehend an individual who has admitted participation in a violent crime or has escaped from a correctional institution or from lawful custody.

If you are a member of the Armed Forces, we may release health information about you for activities deemed necessary by military command authorities. We also may release personal health information about foreign military personnel to their appropriate foreign military authorities.

Finally, JSSA may disclose protected health information for national security and intelligence activities and for the provision of protective services to the President of the United States and other officials or foreign heads of state.

Disclosures to Persons Assisting in Your Care or Payment for Your Care: JSSA may disclose information to individuals involved in your care or in the payment for your care. This includes people and organizations that are part of your "circle of care" – such as your spouse, your doctors, or an aide who may be providing services to you. We also may use and disclose health information about a patient/client for disaster relief efforts and to notify persons responsible for a patient's/client's care about a patient's/client's location, general condition, or death. Generally, we will obtain your verbal agreement before using or disclosing health information in this way. However, under certain circumstances, such as in an emergency situation, we may make these uses and disclosures without your agreement.

Appointment Reminders: JSSA may use and disclose medical information to contact you as a reminder that you have an appointment or that you should schedule an appointment.

Fundraising: JSSA may use your protected health information to contact you in an effort to raise funds for our operations. You have the right to opt out of receiving fundraising communications.
